California Spatial Reference Center,

ADOPTED POLICIES

The following policy statements have been officially adopted by the California Spatial Reference Center (CSRC) Coordinating Council or Executive Committee. These statements, together with the policies and requirements of the University of California, San Diego (UCSD) and CSRC Bylaws, guide the activities, actions, and operations of CSRC and its members.

These policy statements are in addition to UCSD policies/procedures. If a policy within this document conflicts with UCSD policy, the UCSD policy takes priority.

CSRC members, employees, and consultants shall read, understand, and observe these adopted policies.

Policy statements may be broad or relatively narrow and may cover technical issues, as well as administrative issues. Policy statements are applicable (pertinent) on a continuous, sustained basis, as opposed to “one time” decisions.

Policy statements may be adopted, revised, or canceled by the CSRC Coordinating Council or the Executive Committee, as provided by the Bylaws. If an adopted Executive Committee policy conflicts with a Coordinating Council policy, the Coordinating Council policy takes priority.

This document is a “living” document and as such is subject to change. The reader must ensure that his/her document is current.

1. Code of Ethical Conduct

   Code of Ethical Conduct

   The “ethics code” is the basis of professional conduct for an organization. It can be summarized as to "do the right thing" for the overall organization.

   Importance

   For CSRC, it is essential to have accepted standards of conduct, and to acknowledge these standards, to ensure that both individual and collective behavior are consistent with CSRC’s practices, objectives, and goals. In addition –

   • On a personal level, people feel better working for, or being involved with, an ethical organization. If the organization truly values fairness, honesty, and integrity, members and employees are more likely to enjoy their work and take pride in the organization.
• CSRC exists to perform an important, long-term mission in the public interest. It is important that CSRC not only perform this mission to the highest standards of integrity but that CSRC is perceived by others – public agencies, private firms, and the general public – as doing so.

• The individual actions of each member or employee of CSRC directly affects CSRC’s future and the future of California’s spatial referencing capabilities. Each of us is an individual part of an integrated organization – an organization in which each part has the potential to affect all other parts, either positively or negatively.

Conflict of Interest

A conflict of interest occurs when the personal interests or actions of a CSRC member or employee conflict with the official, overall responsibilities, practices, objectives, or goals of CSRC. Individuals must avoid actual and potential conflicts of interests, including even the perception of a conflict.

As a member or employee of CSRC, there are three guiding principles to avoid conflicts of interest:

1. Do not use your position for personal advantage for yourself or any person with whom you have personal, business, or financial ties.

2. Avoid any outside activity that might give the appearance of adversely affecting the objectivity of your judgment or that could interfere with the timely and effective performance of your duties.

3. Do not participate in any procurement process that involves a company in which you, your family, or close friends have significant financial interests or other business or personal connections.

Conclusions

It is difficult in any written document to cover every ethical situation that might arise. This document, therefore, is a guide. High standards of professional conduct are critical to the maintenance of public and private confidence and support of CSRC’s mission.

Each one of us is responsible for our own actions. In our relationships with each other, as well as public agencies, private firms, vendors, contractors, and suppliers, it is essential that we conform to the ethical, legal, and policy restrictions placed upon us and make our decisions in the framework of honesty, integrity, dignity, and loyalty.

If you believe there is a possibility you might have a conflict of interest, it is your responsibility to ask the CSRC Executive Committee to decide the issue.

All CSRC Executive Committee members or nominees will be required to sign and submit a statement acknowledging receipt and understanding of this Policy document and agree to remain in compliance therewith while serving as a member of the Executive Committee.

In addition, attention is directed to the specific contract terms regarding disclosure of employee-vendor relationships.
